How can we get the settings right to encourage water recycling, water-wise customers and deliver a massive capital works program while maintaining affordable prices for Sydney's water supply? How fast are we reaching the decision point to depart from business-as-usual and shift toward the "new way of doing water"? What role is there for the private sector to complement and even compete with Sydney Water?

Can our natural landscape and Indigenous heritage be embedded as the spiritual and aesthetic core of our Future City? What ingredients are required to build a successful economic cluster to attract talent and innovation? What technical, governance and market frameworks will enable Future City utilities to be water and carbon neutral/positive? How to integrate digitisation, automation, connectivity and 30-minute mobility, into an interlocking and dynamic intelligent ecosystem?
